

Jumpstarting the Clean Tech Economy through International Partnerships: Lessons from the Massachusetts-Israel Relationship

Sunday, November 15, 2009

9:30 a.m. - 2:00 p.m.

Harvard University John F. Kennedy School of Government
Taubman building, 5th floor, Cambridge, MA

Click here to register!

Featuring:

- Keynote address by Congressman Edward Markey (D-MA), co-author of the American Clean Energy and Security Act
- Comments by George Bachrach, president of the Environmental League of Massachusetts
- Leaders from the most innovative clean tech companies, including:
 - Better Place (providing the infrastructure and scale for electric cars in California, Hawaii, Australia, Japan, Denmark, and Israel)
 - BrightSource Energy (building the world's largest solar energy plants)
 - Qteros (a Marlborough-based company using microbes to transform plant waste into fuel)
- Leaders from the top investment firms, including:
 - 21 Ventures (a virtual technology incubator)
 - Battery Ventures (a venture capital firm that has invested nearly $3 billion in the technology sector)
 - Maniv Energy Capital (a major investor in clean energy, energy efficiency, water, greentech, and agritech)

Sponsored by: Combined Jewish Philanthropies, Goodwin Procter LLP, Environmental League of Massachusetts, Center for Public Leadership at Harvard Kennedy School, Boston Israel Cleantech Alliance, Harvard Kennedy School Israel Caucus, Harvard Business School Greentech & Sustainability Club

There is no fee for this event. Seats are limited. Advance registration is strongly recommended.

For more information, please contact Beth at 617-457-8542 or bethrk@cjp.org.

Directions: The Taubman building at Harvard University John F. Kennedy School of Government is on Eliot Street in Harvard Square, Cambridge, across from the Charles Hotel.

Parking: Available on street or at the Charles Square Garage (1 Bennett Street), Harvard Parking Garage (1 Eliot Street), or University Place Parking (124 Mt. Auburn Street).

Lunch will be served. Dietary laws will be observed.